NORFOLK, Va., November 26 .- Should Battling Nelson come out of the contest with Owen Moran with colors still flying many ring followers will take off their hats to the plucky little Dane and wish him the best of luck when he takes on Ad Wolgast. The proposed match between the Hegewisch boy and the boy who took the title away from him has been moved forward to December 24, and is contingent, I suppose, on the result of today's mix-up with the clever Moran.

The Battler is the most wideawake man in the ranks of pugilism today, and outclasses all the other boys when it comes to grabbing off the rich plums. The Dane does not need a manager; he knows the angles pretty well, thank you, and if you want to put one over on him an a business way, why, get up early in the morn-I see where Bat is out with a signed

I wonder if the professional boxers en this side of the Atlantic realize how soft it is for them as compared with their brethren across the pond. Think of being paid $1.50 or $2 a night for having your map mussed up and maybe taking the count of ten from a good wallop to the point of the chin. That's what the boys are handed over in dear old London, and now they are organizing a boxers union to try to boost the wages. Our own Jimmy Britt is on one of the committees, I believe. As a result of the recent, election in the state of New York there is a different feeling among the fans, a sort of expectation that all their wrongs will be righted, and the followers of the art of boxing look forward confidently to the coming session of the legislature. It is thought that a bill similar to the old Horton law will be introduced, and which will legalize boxing in the state. Under the present system of holding exhibitions the athletic clubs are doing nobly, but the fans want to see the big fellows get together now and then, and that is an impossibility, if would appear, just at present.

I would like to see a bill put through
